Hello everyone,

I hope that everyone has had a couple of restful days over the holidays. As we enter in to the provincial wide lock down, I hope that you continue to find ways to connect with loved ones virtually and make the best of these challenging times.

Hot off the press - I am pleased to inform you that the outbreak at Idlewyld Manor was declared over by Public Health this morning. We are so pleased with how the Idlewyld team worked through the outbreak. The end result is a testament to the hard work of a highly engaged and committed team of professionals that continually went well beyond the call of duty and kept our residents safe during a very unpredictable time. We are so grateful to our physicians, our exceptional leadership team, our dedicated and courageous front line staff and our incredible essential family caregivers. THANK YOU!

I also want to commend our staff at our other 16 sites for continually rising to the challenge and keeping our sites COVID-19 free. You are also our heroes and we could not do this without your proven commitment to excellence and your diligent infection prevention control practices. Well done!

We know that we have a long road still ahead of us and today reinforces what we can collectively do when faced with challenges. We will continue to meet and exceed provincial precautionary measures and limit visiting as per directives to ensure the safety and health of our clients, residents, staff and family members.

Thank you once again for all your patience and continued support. We are getting through this together. All the best over the coming week as we prepare to enter 2021.
